11:10–12:00 P.M.	GENERAL SESSION: BUILDING ENERGY EQUITY INTO TRANSPORTATION ELECTRIFICATION
	As the turn toward EVs continues and large scale infrastructure buildouts become more common, it's more important than ever to consider energy equity as a key part of electrification. Discover when, where and how we are engaging our communities in the acceleration of EV adoption.
12:00–12:10 P.M.	BREAK + ENTERTAINMENT
12:10–1:00 P.M.	LIGHTNING TALKS
	Planting the Seeds of Collaboration: Engaging the Agriculture Market Despite a growth in opportunities, it has proven to be a challenge for utilities to stand up effective, large-scale incentive offerings for the agriculture sector for various reasons. In this session, speakers will explore best practices and strategies for building relationships and driving up engagement with this hard-to-reach market segment.
	Mega(watt) Innovations in Distributed Energy Resources As capacity constraints become more common and demand continues to increase steadily, DERs (Distributed Energy Resources) and related grid-attached storage deployments have taken on a renewed importance — but how do you turn these grid-edge devices into a true energy resource? Tune in as we discuss turning energy asset portfolios into comprehensive MW solutions.
	EE for All: Energy Equity and Grounding Programs in Community Relationships For years, our industry has pushed for greater accessibility in energy efficiency through program design such as expanded LMI and multifamily programs and diverse partnerships. But how do we ensure our programs are truly equitable and deliver savings to those most in need all while strengthening the communities they serve? The answer lies in cultivating community relationships and partnerships.
1:00–1:45 P.M.	GENERAL SESSION: BRINGING NEW LIGHT TO LIGHTING
	As regulatory changes to long-standing policies such as EISA emphasize the importance of agility in our industry, many utilities are looking for a place to turn — and according to the latest data, midstream and market transformation could be the most promising options out there. Speakers will describe what this transition looks like in practice during this session on an increasingly relevant topic.
1:45–2:00 P.M.	DAY 2: LOOKING FORWARD
	As we reflect on our theme of “Relationships: People and Data”, meet our impactful 2021 Glenn Garland Fellowship recipients and discover what is in store for CLEARResult Energy Forum in 2022.
